“ One of my youngest memories , at the age of three, is of Dude putting a beetle on my shirt one summer day. My mother and I were so upset with him! That's the way he was.... a giant with a boyish sense of humor.

To me, he was a giant. He filled a room with his presence. A loving, playful giant that made everyone around him know how much they meant to him. He loved to tell stories and hear yours. He was truly one of the most genuine human beings I have ever known. We all could benefit from having someone like him in our lives.

For those of us that will miss him greatly, we have the solace of knowing that he is reunited with the one person he loved the most, his beautiful wife, Wanda. They enjoyed 65 years of life and love together. He first saw her on the school bus to and from Blue High School all those years ago.

I say goodbye to you, Olen. You touched so many lives with a positive spirit. I doubt you even knew how much your influence affected us. I will always have the fondest of memories of you and how you impacted my life.

“ My family would travel back to Oklahoma every summer, I treasure those memories. As I was so young, I always remember Uncle Dude as a giant of a man but so gentle. When we visited my Mom's side of the family, I always sought out his company, if nothing else, to listen to his voice, never harsh and always loving. He was an example of Godly devoted husband and his memory always serves as a touch point for me to choose the path of forgiveness, love and grace, but I will never do it as well as he did.

Rest in Peace Uncle Dude
