I worked with Bobby at Food Service Concepts. My dad worked with him at Fabricators. Great guy he was. I drove him home once because he felt ill. I even worked on his daughter's house and made a trap door for his pontoon boat. I'll never forget him. And my dad also worked with Nathan

“ My uncle must be the best soul I have ever seen on earth. He loved Chevrolets, fishing, grandkids and country music. I learned to drive my first car by him and whenever there was a project on his farm I was there with bells on. I helped him build his main barn, one day while working on it he asked me to move his truck farther away from where we it was parked. He loved his Chevy Silverado more than life itself and I knew if I wrecked it that I would make him regret telling me to move it. I denied it, I told him no. It was a very beautiful black (my favorite color) truck with tinted windows and hard cover on the back and soft leather seats. He asked me kindly why, I stammered I have never drove a vehicle in my life and I will not destroy your truck. He laughed at me and said what are you going to hit? We are out in the middle of nowhere. Alright, I answered, but you got to guide me, He said put your foot on the brake and turn the key. The motor roared to life and I was shaking uncontrollably, now move the shifter to R. Now release the brake, It moved backwards away from the barn post used as the main supports and he said stop, hit the brake and put back at P!. I turned the key off and got out right proud of myself and smiled all day long. He showed me how to use my hands to cut wood, I spend days with him burning brush and brush hogging the acres of land. We would fish and ride the 4-wheeler with my kids to show them a good time. Never lost his temper, never said a bad word, never raised his voice always had respect for kind to all the people in his life. I have so many stories I could tell, but Bobby was one hell of an uncle, he was the dad I wished I could have got and because of him I share my knowledge to my kids that I learned from him. He was the best man that this guy has ever met. He cannot be replaced. I will miss my uncle.
