“ So painful to write. Brad was a friend. I was fortunate enough to call him family too. That easy smile, twinkling eyes, always ready for a laugh. Brad was a true uncle to my son. An always ready fishing buddy, he meant so much to our Joshua. I know Brad is at peace now and there's much comfort in that. We will all join Brad at our appointed time to pass from this earth. Until then, I'll try and smile a little easier, laugh a little more in memory of this special man. Praying for the family. Your Brad will always be so cherished in my heart and in the hearts of many that he touched.

“Brad. What can I say or where to start? There were so many memories over the years. Although we had met as children when coming through to visit Granny and Granpa, we really didn't hang out much until we moved to Durant from the Carolina's. He didn't know what to make of me or Don - long hair, different ways, etc., but he had pity on us and showed us Okie life through the eyes of a teenager. We hunted, we fished, rode motorcycles and on more than one occasion, bailed my butt out of a couple of tight spots. Of course, we probably shouldn't have been climbing in old peanut mills or going out so far in the lake, but those are our stories.

Brad was a good athlete and excelled in baseball and basketball. There wasn't much he couldn't do. Even as kid, he worked hard and chose to be a working man his whole life. But between being a kid and working, there was making the drag, hitting stall #5 to get rid of the beer, chasing girls (no disrespect intended), and burning up those dusty dirt roads in Nowhere, OK.

Brad was one of those rare people that everybody liked. Everyone thought him the epitome of cool yet he was a happy-go-lucky sort that got along with everyone. He was the Kuykendall Family's favorite son. While we don't always seem to get along or agree with one another, no one ever didn't get along with Brad. He was always welcome everywhere he went with the family.

As with everyone, we all grew up and chased our dreams in different ways and places. We often fell out of touch or didn't see each other for long periods of time. But when I (or anyone) met up with Brad, it was like 'old home week' and we would BS or maybe have a beer or two and things would seem like yesterday. He just had that effect on people.

When I heard Brad passed away last Saturday, I was out on Lake Texoma fishing for crappie (one of his pet-peeves was how I used to say crappie lol) and I have to admit, I was a little surprised with my reaction to the news. While I was a little melancholy about it, it wasn't grief that I felt. I'm sad he passed at such a young age, but, in passing, I thank him for taking me on a nice long walk down this memory lane. So, to you - Brad, I'll tip one up and offer you Cheers. May you have fair winds and following seas wherever you are.

“Brad always had a way of making me feel better about my situation whenever I was feeling down. He was a good friend who was always willing to help. It seemed like we could hardly go 2 minutes without laughing about something...we just cracked each other up. He is loved and missed.
