We search for answers when we grieve, we long for the love and comfort that we were used to sharing, wishing we had one more hug, one more moment, wanting to see that smile, just one more time, Love lives on, with every memory, with every picture, with every flutter of our hearts, Love lives on. Brian lived a life he loved, cherished his children, from building cars to painting fingernails, he loved being a dad, A tough guy image, with a smirk that held one of the kindest souls we've ever known, he shared his love with his children and family, and with countless friends, as we continue our journey, we must carry that love with us, when we share that love, his love lives on.

“ So sorry to hear about your loss of Brian. I knew him when he was young and I was friends with Vickie and shared their home for awhile. He was a wonderful boy then and so glad he became a father and grandfather before God needed him home.

“ There are no words that can take away your pain or broken hearts, but God is right beside each of you to walk hand in hand through the most difficult days ahead. Stand strong in your faith as God will comfort and give rest to the weary and broken-hearted. On the days that you think your heart can't go on, pause and look up to the Lord. Even the darkest night will end and the sun will rise. Love and Faith will see you through, ever how long it takes.

Godspeed
