“ The tremendous love Dicky had for his family was very evident. His family were not just a part of his life, they were at the core of his identity. I saw the profound sense of happiness, fulfillment, and pride they brought him – especially his grandkids. In a world often overshadowed by self-interest, Dicky's selflessness and genuine concern for others defined him. His actions and words spoke volumes about a man who prioritized the well-being and happiness of those around him over his own needs.

I was introduced to Dicky nearly 20 years ago through his son-in-law Micah. Throughout the years, I had the honor of spending time with Dicky during fishing and hunting outings. Dicky shared a lot of stories during these outings; some of which I heard a dozen times or more. Yet, these repetitions unveiled the true treasures of his heart—memories of friends and family that he cherished deeply. It seemed as though he retold the stories to keep the spirit of those moments alive. While I have never met many of the people in Dicky's stories, I felt a connection to them as they were important to Dicky.

As we celebrate Dicky's life and mourn his passing, it is with gratitude for the privilege of knowing a man whose impact reached far beyond the details of any individual story. In the echoes of his laughter, the warmth of his hospitality, and the lessons of his character, Dicky Kidd's legacy lives on. In saying our farewells, we can't help but remember Dicky Kidd with immense gratitude for the profound influence one person can have on the lives of those fortunate enough to be a part of his family or to call him a friend.

Go rest high Dicky, go rest high.
