“Fatman and I share the same birthday, June 25th. I met Fatman a couple years ago when I went to visit a long time friend that was living at his place of residence at the time, where I ended up moving in as well. I found out that his last name was Buckaloo, whom of which I'm related through my biological father. I got to know my new found cousin along with other family members I never met. Fatman told me a little about my dad and his side of the family. He reminded me of myself. He had a huge heart and would give the shirt off his back no questions asked. He was there for me when I was having a hard time and made sure I got back up said he needed me. I wish he knew the true impact he has had in peoples lives. I do know that the memories I will forever cherish are those nights he took me and others fishing at night. Those were some good times. He is going to be missed.
