Aunt Doris is my mother's sister. We would visit her in Oklahoma from Oregon. After I (Jeanne) married, we went to Oklahoma with my parents and 2 year old daughter. My husband told Doris, he enjoyed her accent. She promptly replied, I don't have an accent, do y'all want a glass of tea?? I enjoyed listening to her talk. She is the last one from my parents who had the history and the stories. She lived a very full life and will be missed.

I (Peggy) her oldest daughter, remember how she would try anything, didn't matter to her if she didn't know anything about it. There are two stories I particularly remember her telling us: She was on her way to Fort Worth, Tx. to interview for a job that required she use a ten-key machine. On her way down from Oklahoma she stopped at a business, went in and ask someone if they could show her how to operate it. They did and she got the job! Later after she retired from teaching she would occasionally enter these women's magazine's contests. She submitted a cake recipe to Redbook without making the recipe herself. She won first! Yes, our family will miss her smiling face and her stories.

“ Sad to learn about the loss of my grandma. She was a wonderful woman who I wish I could have seen and talked to more. She will be greatly missed.
