“ Eloise Sills

“ Eloise Sills was a fine lady and a superb music teacher. I have vivid memories of her when I was in 5th grade at Washington Irving taking our class into the auditorium to teach us music. I was younger than most of my classmates, and so my young brain struggled to grasp the concepts of music theory that seemed easy for others. This stirred in me feelings of self doubt. Later in life when I was about to enter my freshman year of college at Southeastern as a music major, I was enrolled in Mrs. Sills' music theory class....again! This time I was prepared. I bought my text books early that summer before classes began, and I would spend my days studying those books cover to cover. It paid off, and the intimidation of music theory became a thing of the past. Eloise Sills was a poised, elegant and gracious lady who spent a lifetime in service to others. Her loveliness will be missed.

“ Eloise was not only an excellent teacher, but a close family friend and neighbor for many years. She and my mother spent many happy hours together on long Dallas shopping adventures to decorate their homes and, of course visits to Neiman's Little Mermaid cafe to refuel before returning. Our families also enjoyed camping trips in earlier years with both John and Eloise. She was loved by many and will be missed.

“ Eloise was such a wonderful lady who's heart was made of gold. I remember riding Bullwinkle, the horse she and John gave to me through their land and helping her in her yard pulling weeds and picking up limbs. My fondest memories were picking her and my mom up for Sunday fun day's to come to my house for lunch and playing with the grandkids.

Eloise and my mom, Sarah were best friends since grade school and I am so happy they are now together again. I love you and miss you beautiful lady.

Yes, Laura, I can't think of Eloise without your mom or vice versa. I've known Eloise and John for most of my life, and I love the photos you posted. I hope your parents, mine, the Sills and Dub Manahan are playing bridge together right now. I'm not in Durant this week, but will be at the service in spirit. Love to all, Cheryl Phelps
