“ I was so shocked to learn of this horrible loss of such a sweet soul. I went to school with Greg and worked with him at the swimming pool, and I will never forget his kindness and handsome smile. My thoughts and prayers are with his family at this very difficult time. May God give you all strength and faith to make it through this sadness.

“ Irene, I cannot even begin to express my deepest sympathy to you since I cannot know how deep that pain runs. I have been close but have not journeyed the path you have this week. My heart aches for you and your family at this time since the thought of losing Ryan was so close to reality for me and that alone, was pain enough. You were there...I am for you. You can lean on me, cry on my shoulder, scream if you must and I will be there. Whatever you need, let me know because I know you would be there for me.

You are dear friend, Irene. You have one back.

“ There will come a day when the tears of sorrow will softly flow into tears of remembrance...and your heart will begin healing itself...and grieving will be interrupted by episodes of joy...and you will hear the whisper of hope. There will come a day when you will welcome the tears of remembrance...as a sun shower of the soul...a turning of the tide...a promise of peace. There will come a day when you will...risk loving...go on believing...and treasure the tears of remembrance. All those sleeping in their graves will wake up and sing for joy. As the sparkling dew refreshes the earth, so the Lord will revive those who have long been dead.”-Isa. 26:19.
