“ Did you ever have a huge debt that you could hardly repay? Well, that sums up my friendship during my upbringing with Peter Wendell Niefeld. I cannot possible contain in these worlds the quantity and the quality of time we spent together as schoolboys, as middle schoolers, and during all of high school. If I had a dollar for every time we bust a gut laughing, or just smiled together, I would not have need to make a living as an adult. Add to this the more meaningful, touching times we shared as we neared adulthood, when merely having fun was not the sole purpose in life. Damn, we share some very personal stuff.....and helped each other work on such issues.

Peter, I can never repay what you gave me. I miss you just terribly. My upbringing would have been much the poorer without you, not to mention your lovely folks, Jaye and Piri, who treated me as an additional son.
