What can I say about my dear sister, Virginia? She loved her husband, children, and grandchildren dearly. She always tried to make sure they had what they needed. When she was younger, she loved to read and wanted to share her love of literature with others. But her health wouldn't let her fulfill all of her dreams. Even though she developed health issues at a relatively young age, she was always ready to do what was needed to take care of her family. She and Dale were both very hardworking people and together they had a single goal in mind...to create a better future for their family. She is loved and missed by many.
